Both time-based and performance-based options are granted for a ten year term.

The Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) SFAS Number 123R "Share-Based Payment" (SFAS 123R) requires companies to expense the fair value of employee stock options and similar awards over the employee requisite service period. Under the fair value recognition provisions of SFAS 123R, stock-based compensation expense is measured at the grant date based upon the value of the award. For time-based options, compensation expense is recorded on a straight line basis over the requisite service period of five years. For the performance-based options, compensation expense is recorded at the time that the achievement of financial performance goals become probable, and then is recorded over the requisite performance and service periods.

11. Financial Instruments with Off-Balance Sheet Risk and Concentrations of Risk

In the normal course of business, the Company securities activities involve execution, settlement and financing of various securities transactions. These activities may expose the Company to off-balance sheet credit and market risk in the event customers, or other counterparties are unable to fulfill their contractual obligations. It is the Company's policy to review, as necessary, the credit standing of each counterparty with which it conducts business.

As part of its normal brokerage activities, the Company may sell securities not yet purchased. Securities sold, but not yet purchased represent obligations of the Company to deliver the specified security at the contracted price and thereby creating a liability to repurchase the security in the market at prevailing prices. Accordingly these transactions result in off-balance-sheet risk, as the Company's ultimate obligation to satisfy the sale of securities sold, but not yet purchased may exceed the amount recognized in the statement of financial condition. Securities positions are monitored on a daily basis.

Derivative contracts are financial instruments whose value is based upon the value of the underlying asset, index, reference rate, or any combination of these factors. The Company uses derivative financial instruments as part of its trading business. These financial instruments, which generally include exchange-traded options, expose the Company to varying degrees of market and credit risk. The Company records its derivative-trading activities at fair value. The notional amount of short options is $70,000.

In margin transactions, the Company extends credit to customers, subject to various regulatory and internal margin requirements, collateralized by cash and securities in the customer's accounts. The Company seeks to control the risks associated with its customer activities by requiring customers to maintain margin collateral in compliance with various regulatory and internal margin guidelines. The Company monitors required margin levels daily and pursuant to such guidelines, requests the customer to deposit additional collateral or to reduce positions when necessary.

The Company records customer transactions on a settlement date basis, generally three days after trade-date. The Company is exposed to off-balance sheet risk of loss on unsettled transactions in the event customers or other counterparties are unable to meet the terms of their contracts, in which case the Company may have to purchase or sell financial instruments at prevailing market prices. It is the Company's policy to review as necessary, the credit standing of each counterparty with which it conducts business.
